“It’s rare to encounter a domestic comedy that speaks to an entire generation, but Theresa Rebeck’s Sunday on the Rocks strikes a raw nerve for today’s generation of Angry Young Women. The play spotlights four female roommates, all equally confused as they try to make sense of their lives in a complex world ... witty and smart.” Patti Hartigan, Boston Globe